BAD FRIDAY: RASTAFARI AFTER CORAL GARDENS

Deborah A. Thomas, John L. Jackson, Jr. & Junior "Gabu" Wedderburn, 2011, 63 min

For many, Jamaica conjures up images of pristine beach vacations with a pulsating reggae soundtrack. The country, however, has one of the highest per capita murder rates in the world, and the population is actively grappling with the legacies of Western imperialism, racial slavery, and political nationalism – the historical foundations of contemporary violence in Jamaica and throughout the Americas. Bad Friday focuses on a community of Rastafarians in western Jamaica who annually commemorate the 1963 Coral Gardens “incident,” a moment just after independence when the Jamaican government rounded up, jailed and tortured hundreds of Rastafarians. It chronicles the history of violence in Jamaica through the eyes of its most iconic community, and shows how past traumas are a gateway to new possibilities. Subjects: Caribbean Studies, African Diaspora

DVD Purchase: $225, DVD with Soundtrack CD: $325

"The poignant testimony of the men and women whose lives were forever scarred by these events, obliges us to confront the shocking and unmerciful level of state violence that was unleashed against the entire Rastafarian community of Jamaica."

THE AMERINDIANS

Tracy Assing, 2010, 40 min

In this revealing documentary, Amerindian filmmaker Tracy Assing investigates Trinidad's indigenous history and the inner workings of the Santa Rosa Carib Community, the only recognized group representing indigenous descendants in Trinidad. Until now, Amerindian descendants have depended on the oral histories of their grandparents and great-grandparents, while the indigenous story of survival has been left out of the official history books. Recommended by Anthropology Review Database.

CALYPSO DREAMS

Geoffrey Dunn & Michael Horne, 2004, 85 min

An intimate portrait of some of the true calypsonians in Trinidad & Tobago, in performance and in conversation. Shot over three years in Port of Spain, Trinidad, the documentary includes such legendary calypsonians as Lord Pretender, Lord Kitchener, the Mighty Bomber, Relator, Lord Superior, Brigo, Mystic Prowler, Calypso Rose, the Mighty Sparrow, Terror, Valentino, Lord Blakie, David Rudder, Regeneration Now, the Mighty Duke, Conqueror and many others. The film chronicles the fascinating spirit and traditions of calypso music dating back to its complex Afro-Caribbean roots in the 18th and 19th centuries, and captures riveting, contemporary performances by a host of legendary Calypso performers with colorful "sobriquets," including Black Stalin, Singing Sandra and Mighty Terror. The film also includes a rare and exclusive interview with Harry Belafonte on the issue of his early involvement with calypso and his complex relationship with Lord Melody in the 50s and early 60s. Using a rich array of archival footage and photographs, Calypso Dreams illustrates how the music was homogenized by the American music industry in the 40s and 50s, only to survive and thrive locally. Calypso Dreams provides a cultural rediscovery of a musical tradition that has been bypassed by the mainstream for decades. It is a celebration of calypso music, the intense sense of community it engenders in Trinidad & Tobago, and of the art form's dynamic social and political roots, which sustain it. Subjects: Caribbean Studies, Music

Third World Newsreel is proud to release Malian filmmaker Manthia Diawara's latest two documentaries. In Edouard Glissant the late Martinican philosopher meditates on the new meanings of globalization, chaos, violence, equality and justice. Maison Tropicale is a postcolonial excavation into African identity, art and the notion of cultural patrimony.

EDOUARD GLISSANT: ONE WORLD IN RELATION

Manthia Diawara, 2010, 50 min

In 2009, Manthia Diawara followed late philosopher Edouard Glissant on the Queen Mary II in a cross-Atlantic journey from South Hampton, UK to Brooklyn, New York, then to Martinique, the native home of Glissant. The extraordinary voyage resulted in this intellectual biographical film in which elaborates on his theories of creolization, diversity and otherness, as well as his concept of "Relation" as an autonomous entity, moving between objects and providing them with energy, poesis and difference. Subjects: African Diaspora, Caribbean Studies

MAISON TROPICALE

Manthia Diawara, 2008, 58 min

Designed by famous French architect Jean Prouvé, and built by the colonial French government in 1951, the Maisons Tropicales were prototype houses intended to address the shortage of housing in the French colonies of West Africa. For several years Mireille Ngatsé lived comfortably in one of the Maisons Tropicales built in Brazzaville, Republic of Congo. One day, four men came from France and took the Maison Tropicale away. Today, the house is being exhibited around the world as a precious art object. The film brings to life the hidden stories of those left behind in Africa when the Maisons Tropicales were removed. Subjects: African Studies, Architecture

AUDRE LORDE - THE BERLIN YEARS 1984 TO 1992

Dagmar Schultz, 2012, 84 min

2012 marks the 20th anniversary of Audre Lorde's passing, the acclaimed feminist lesbian poet and activist. Audre Lorde - The Berlin Years 1984 to 1992 explores a little-known chapter of the writer's prolific life, a period in which she helped ignite the Afro-German Movement and made lasting contributions to the German political and cultural scene before and after the fall of the Berlin Wall and the German reunification. Lorde mentored and encouraged Black German women to assert their identities, rights and culture in a society that isolated and silenced them, while challenging white German women to acknowledge their white privilege. This documentary contains previously unreleased audiovisual material from director Dagmar Schultz's personal archive, showing Lorde on and off stage. With testimony from Lorde's colleagues, students and friends, this film documents Lorde's lasting legacy in Germany.

LADIES OF THE GRIDIRON

Briana Young, 2010, 35 min

When most think of American football, they imagine raw, unbridled demonstrations of athletic might pushed to the max, but rarely do those images involve women. The Quake is a professional women's tackle football team out to break the glass ceiling of this traditionally all-male sport. These women embody the same dogged determination as their male counterparts. Beyond that, they must deal with a societal prejudice that keeps them on the periphery of professional sports, having to pay their own way even as other female athletes, such as those in the Lingerie League, draw a salary. This documentary is a great resource for examining the sociology of gender roles, the female athlete and what it means to be "feminine." Subjects: Women's Studies, African Diaspora

ENEMY ALIEN

Konrad Aderer, 2011, 82 min

Enemy Alien is the gripping story of the fight to free Farouk Abdel-Muhti, a Palestinian-born human rights activist detained in a post-9/11 sweep of Muslim immigrants. Narrated by filmmaker Konrad Aderer, the grandson of Japanese-Americans interned during World War II, this documentary takes on unprecedented intimacy and historical resonance. As the filmmaker confronts his own family legacy of incarceration, his involvement in the current struggle deepens. Resistance brings consequences: in retaliation for organizing a hunger strike, Farouk is locked in solitary confinement, and a counterterrorism investigation into the documentary itself triggers the arrest of Farouk's American-born son Tarek.

FINDING D-QU: THE LONELY STRUG- GLE OF CALIFORNIA'S ONLY TRIBAL COLLEGE

Chris Newman, 2010, 26 min

In 2005, D-Q University, California's only tribal college serving Chicano and Native American students, was shut down 35 years after its founding. Former board members, students, and community members have tried to reopen the school against all odds, going as far as illegally running the school and occupying the closed campus amid threats of arrest. Finding D-QU critically examines the wider American Indian movement, its historical struggle to maintain a self-reliant educational institution for Indian students, and the internal hardships, successes and failures that come with the movement to reclaim education for Native people.

IRACEMA (DE QUESTEMBERT)

Maria Thereza Alves, 2009, 27 min

In the fictional docudrama Iracema (De Questembert), specially made for the Lyon Biennale, Maria Thereza Alves recounts the story of Iracema, a young indigenous woman from Corubime, an isolated Brazilian village. Iracema makes the long journey from her village to São Paulo and then to France, where she learns that she has just inherited her father's estate. Iracema becomes the owner of a vast property which the local authorities would like to buy from her rather than see it in the hands of a "savage". Undaunted, Iracema fights to keep her property, where she later founds the Questembert Institute for Art and Science. Subjects: Indigenous Studies, Latin American Studies

ARIZONA: RESISTING SB 1070 IMMIGRATION LAW

NLDLON, NDWA, and Puente Movement, 2011, 60 min

SB 1070, signed into law by Arizona Governor Brewer in April 2010, made it a crime not to carry documentation at all times – and gave local police broad powers to detain anyone they suspected of possibly being undocumented. These shorts show the chilling terror that keeps families prisoners in their own homes for fear of losing members to surprise detainment and deportations. Women and children have been particularly affected by this law, but have also been at the forefront of the resistance. This compilation was a collaborative project of the National Day Laborer Organizing Network, the National Domestic Workers Alliance in partnership with the Puente Movement.

Short I: Arizona Women and Children Rise (18 min)

In May 2010, a delegation of women leaders, including members of the National Domestic Workers Alliance, went to Arizona to bear witness to the human rights abuses against women and children in the wake of the passing of law SB1070. Women and children testify as news footage and hidden cameras portrayed the raids and detainments. Meanwhile, local women organize a protest on Mother's Day against the anti-immigration law.

Short II: Women and Children's Advocacy Day (9 min)

A combination of clips from the Women and Children's Advocacy Day press conference and hearing that took place on July 15, 2010 in Washington D.C. Included is the voice of Puente Arizona, the National Domestic Workers Alliance, the personal accounts of young activists whose lives have been directly affected by the anti-immigration law SB1070. A young mother shares her fearful story: "I'm a hard-working mother here to support my family. I'm really afraid of being deported and I don't want to leave my daughter here without a mother."

Short III: Women and Children's Advocacy Day Press Conference (11 min)

Clips from the Women and Children's Advocacy Day press conference, featuring representatives from the National Domestic Workers Alliance, Puente Arizona, and young activists who have directly been affected by the anti-immigration law SB1070. Heidi Portugal, age 12, addresses the audience and says, "So I ask all of you guys, please, to pass the word and not let SB1070 pass as a law because it is just hateful and separates lots of families."

Short IV: Women and Children's Advocacy Day Hearing (22 min)

Clips from the Women and Children's Advocacy Day hearing, featuring young activists and state representatives, all addressing the consequences of detaining and deporting parents, and the lasting effects this has on the children left behind. Carola Suarez-Orozco, a professor of applied psychology at New York University, reports, "currently 16 million children have at least one parent that is an immigrant. The majority of these youths are U.S. citizens."

Third World Newsreel's historical Newsreel collection provides contemporary audiences with a vast archive of political documentary films chronicling the social movements of the late 1960s and early 1970s. Thanks to the generous contributions of New York Women in Film and Television, original members of the Newsreel collective, and Richard Brick, two of these unique films have been newly preserved and are now available for purchase and rental.

JANIE'S JANIE

Newsreel, 1972, 25 min

Produced by The Newsreel collective, Janie's Janie is an extraordinary document of the early 1970's women's movement. In this personal documentary, Jane Giese, a working class woman in Newark, comes to realize that she has to take control of her own life after years of physical and mental abuse. The "personal" aspect of the film was unusual for early Newsreel, and its very existence resulted from gender issue struggles within the collective itself. It is a document of a time and its issues, and of the efforts of feminists to give creative visual form to their concerns. Using both interviews and verité material, it is one of the more complex Newsreel films. Principal collaborators were: Geri Ashur, Peter Barton, Marilyn Mulford and Stephanie Palewski, with music by Bev Grant. Subjects: Women's Studies, Cinema Studies

Newsreel, 1970, 5 min

A short created by Geri Ashur, Andrea Eagan, Marcia Salo Rizzi and Deborah Shaffer and co-directed by Ashur and Peter Schlaifer, the film shows a young couple making out in a car while a voice-over reveals the young woman's real thoughts about what is happening. This film is unique in the Newsreel collection, as it was filmed with actors, with a voice-over script created from a women's group discussion. Subjects: Women's Studies, Youth, Cinema Studies
