DAUGHTERS OF MOTHER INDIA

A FILM BY VIBHA BAKSHI

DAUGHTERS OF MOTHER INDIA reveals the aftermath of the horrific rape and murder of a 23-year-old medical student in Delhi in December 2012. For weeks, mass protests filled the streets of India and the country witnessed gender consciousness and extraordinary solidarity by ordinary citizens like never before. The eyes of the world were on the country’s rampant gender violence, and stories about violence against women in India were hitting the world’s headlines almost on a daily basis.

In this documentary, Indian journalist and filmmaker Vibha Bakshi questions how Indian society is changing after the 2012 events. Although an Anti-Rape Law was passed and changes were made within the police force and the judiciary, gender violence still persists. Did anything change? Throughout the film Bakshi probes local judges, police officers, teachers, activists and even street performers that are fighting against gender violence on a daily basis, while simultaneously showing the critical role that each one of these social actors must play to bring real change in India. # ON THE BRIDE'S SIDE

A FILM BY ANTONIO AUGUGLIARO, GABRIELE DEL GRANDE & KHALED SOLIMAN AL NASSIRY

In Milan, five refugees of the Syrian Civil War and survivors of one of the 2013 migrant shipwrecks in Lampedusa, Italy, meet an Italian journalist and a Palestinian-Syrian poet who are eager to help the group of refugees reach Sweden, where Syrian migrants can apply for residency. How can the group traverse the European continent from Milan to Stockholm without being stopped at the borders of Italy, France, Germany, Denmark and Sweden? What if they pretend they are on their way to a wedding party? What border patrol agent would ever stop a bride to check her documents?

With a Palestinian friend dressed up as the bride and more than a dozen Italian and Syrian friends as wedding guests, the group crosses halfway over Europe on a four-day journey of almost two thousand miles. This emotionally charged journey not only brings out the stories, hopes and dreams of the five refugees and their new friends, but also reveals an unknown side of Europe, a transnational and supportive Europe that opposes the restrictive laws that are meant to keep refugees out. ON THE BRIDE'S SIDE is a timely look at the urgent refugee crisis happening in the Middle East and Europe and an irreverent and unexpected take on the immigrant road movie. # WAR FOR GUAM

A FILM BY FRANCES NEGRÓN-MUNTANER

WAR FOR GUAM is a film about World War II and its enduring legacy in Guam, a U.S. territory since 1898. The film tells the extraordinary story of how the Native people of Guam, the Chamorros, remained loyal to the U.S. under a brutal Japanese occupation, only to be later stripped of much of their ancestral lands by the American military.

When the Japanese occupation ended, the Chamorros, who had been interned in a concentration camp, welcomed the U.S. soldiers as saviors from death. Yet, immediately after Guam’s liberation on July 21, 1944, the U.S. proceeded to confiscate three quarters of Guam’s land mass for military and recreational purposes. Chamorros responded with a drive for the people of Guam to become U.S. citizens, believing that such status would protect them from the land grabbing. Six years later, Chamorros became U.S. citizens but there was no significant return of lands. Instead, Guam was quickly ushered into a market economy where most activity revolved around military contracts and military service.

Marginally employed or working for the military, Chamorros initially found it difficult to seek justice. But as Chamorros increasingly felt like squatters on their own land, the memory of the war started to change from that of being rescued to that of being reoccupied. Thus, a new struggle began. # ỌYA: SOMETHING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO WEST AFRICA!

A FILM BY SEYI ADEBANJO

In this documentary, Queer Gender-Non-Conforming Nigerian media artist Seyi Adebajo tells a tale not often heard about gender and indigenous Yorùbá spirituality. ỌYA follows Seyi’s journey to Nigeria to connect with the Òrìṣà tradition, or African God/dess tradition, and the powerful legacy of the filmmaker’s great grandmother, Chief Moloran Ìyá Ọlọya.

This personal and political story vibrantly investigates the heritage of command, mythology, gender fluidity, womyn’s power and the hidden truth behind indigenous Yorùbá spirituality. As Seyi encounters many obstacles such as a national strike and anti-gay marriage legislation in the country, the film raises a critical question, will the artist be able to find self-affirmation as a person between genders/worlds and keep this spiritual inheritance in Nigeria?

This lyrical documentary illuminates the lives of Òrìṣà Ọya (Warrior Goddess), Chief Moloran Ìyá Ọlọya and Seyi Adebajo while interweaving Yorùbá mythology, poetry, performance, and expert interviews. Winner of the Best Documentary Short Award at the Baltimore International Black Film Festival. (2015, 30 min, DVD with Digital File $400, call for public library and high school rates)

HISTORY DOESN'T HAVE TO REPEAT ITSELF

A FILM BY STÉPHANE GÉRARD

Forty-three years after the 1969 Stonewall Uprising, filmmaker Stéphane Gérard travels to New York City in an attempt to find the broad community that was born out of this historical moment and to document how the LGBT movement continues today.

In conversation with Queer activists, organizers and archivists, Gérard touches upon the politics of sexual minorities and the fight against the AIDS epidemic, while documenting multiple community projects, perspectives, and ideals. There is much diversity among LGBT activists and groups, yet they all share the same desire for justice, the same urgency to learn lessons from the past, and the same longing for utopia.

Winner of the Grand Prix Documentaires at the Paris Chéries-Chéris festival, HISTORY DOESN'T HAVE TO REPEAT ITSELF is an experimental documentary and includes interviews with Perry Brass, Deborah Edel, Jim Hubbard, Sarah Schulman and others about The ACT UP Oral History Project, The Audre Lorde Project, BAAD!, Come Out!, MIX NYC, The Lesbian Herstory Archives and Queerocracy. # CHANGING FACE OF HARLEM

A FILM BY SHAWN BATEY

This documentary explores the drastic transformation of Harlem over a ten year span, a transformation that is also taking place in other urban communities of color across the nation. The film tackles the pressing issues of class and cultural preservation as the neighborhood struggles with change.

For decades the neighborhood of Harlem was overlooked. Longtime residents weathered the storm despite the abundance of negligent landlords and the lack of basic city services. Bank practices of redlining in the 1980s prevented many residents from purchasing historic brownstones within their own blocks.

Recently, however, Harlem has developed into a prosperous neighborhood for commercial and corporate interests that now consider buying property in the area an ideal investment. With this influx of real estate developments, a younger and more affluent group of residents has moved in, dramatically growing and changing the population of Harlem.

Harlem residents have a mixed range of opinions about the future of their community. Some are fearful of what lies ahead and look nostalgically at the past. Others foresee a brighter future and happier days for a better Harlem. (DVD with Digital File $400, call for public library and school rates)

BEYOND THE BRICKS: A NEW ERA OF EDUCATION

A FILM BY DEREK KOEN

BEYOND THE BRICKS follows African- American students Shaquiel Ingram and Erick Graham as they struggle to stay on track in the Newark public school system. Fifteen year-old Shaquiel is a bright student who enjoys writing poems and playing the trumpet, but finds himself a ward of the court system when he can no longer take the chaos of his local high school and stops going to class. Erick, a nineteen year-old high school dropout, realizes that the freedom he sought from his former daily school routine is not all it's cracked up to be. Unemployed and unable to find a job, he spends most of his days bored at home and watching TV.

In danger of becoming just another couple of statistics on the school-to-prison-pipeline, the boys find a lifeline with support from compassionate community leaders and alternative education programs that address the root causes of their problems with staying focused in school. Woven into the boys' stories is commentary from some of the country's foremost scholars and experts focused on Black boys and their education. Former Newark Mayor Corey Booker, Schott Foundation President Dr. John Jackson, and Reverend Al Sharpton, among others, weigh in on three areas that have a major impact on the success or failure of African-American boys in school: public policy, the public school system and the role of the larger community. Set in Taiwan and Hawai'i, territories where the Austronesian family languages are spoken, this experimental documentary focuses on the questions, desires and challenges of young indigenous peoples to learn the languages of their forebears—languages that are endangered or facing extinction.

Four young indigenous women from divergent backgrounds get together to collaborate and exchange ideas to consider the impact of language on identity and culture. With 96% of the world's population speaking only 4% of the world's languages, what does it mean to speak your mother tongue in this age of language homogenization? To put it another way, what do you lose when you lose your native language?

Co-directors Shin-Lan Yu and An-Chi Chen from Taiwan, and Lei Kainoa Kaupu and Monica Hau'oli Waiu from Hawai'i, worked with independent filmmaker Anita Wen-Shin Chang and Native Hawaiian educator Malia Nobrega to create this experimental documentary. TONGUES OF HEAVEN is part of ROOT TONGUE, an interactive documentary platform where participants will explore the challenges of language endangerment and preservation on a personal level by sharing their own perspectives through dialogue and creative expression.
